Fact-checking, verifying sources, and understanding the motives behind certain stories are essential steps in separating truth from sensationalized fiction.

Lastly, it's important to prioritize our mental well-being. Limiting exposure to negative news, taking breaks from social media, and engaging in activities that promote positive thinking can combat the negative effects of sensationalism.

"Hot With The Bad Things" may grab our attention and provide temporary amusement, but it comes at a cost. Sensationalism has the power to shape our perceptions, manipulate our emotions, and contribute to the spread of misinformation. By being aware of its allure and taking steps to engage critically with the content we consume, we can overcome the damaging effects of sensationalism and ensure a more informed and balanced society.

These poems take a closer look at violence against women, both physical and psychological. Follow the intersection of fear, identity, and the malleability of the speaker's own experiences of violence enacted on her by men, particularly a past partner. Imagistic and evocative, the poems ask how are we conditioned into living with violence, and how do we move forward?
