Grey -- Desperate times call for desperate measures, otherwise I'd never have signed a contract with Knox's Pleasure Emporium. Selling myself for a few hours once is far better than my other option -- letting my mother's loan shark use me however he sees fit in order to recoup his money. I can't even be angry with Mom since she's no longer with us. She did what she'd thought was best at the time, but now I'm paying the price.

I didn't count on a biker changing my life forever. Not only did we have a slight miscommunication that ended up leaving me with an eighteen-year commitment, but he's my only hope of escaping my son's father. Why do I keep getting tangled up with bad boys? It never ends well for me.

Samurai -- I can admit my past has left me screwed up. I'd never thought I'd pay to be with a woman, but not just anyone can handle my needs. The little goddess I purchased isn't anything like I expected. The way she gives into me so sweetly, and comes apart in my arms, makes it damn hard to forget her when our time is over. I didn't realize I'd be seeing her again, under less than favorable circumstances.

She needs my protection. What do I do? Act like a bastard and call her names. Not my finest moment. Now I need to fix things before my cousin, Phantom, decides to step in and claim her for himself. I might have some issues to work through, but Grey is mine, and no one is taking her from me. Not Phantom, and not the man threatening Grey and her son. Because once I'm in, I'm all in. I'll kill anyone who tries to take her from me. I promised Grey I wouldn't get sent to prison. I didn't promise to be good. I just won't get caught.

WARNING: There are scenes with bad language, adult situations, violence, and talk of abuse that may bother some readers. No cheating. No cliffhanger. And a guaranteed happily-ever-after.
